Thanks, Cheryl We know we can count on your support. We'll talk in the morning. We're very concerned over our injured officers and moving heaven and hell to get to them. [redacted]

[redacted] The UN was hit MUCH worse than us. No work on [redacted]
[redacted] The UN is flying in medevacs early and hopes to start ferrying its injured and dead from the headquarters to the airport where they are setting up a temporary hospital/morgue. The city is chaotic with traffic jams, rubble, and lots of dead bodies. No reports yet of violence, but looting has begun. MINUSTAH is focused totally on trying to rescue people from their crumbled headquarters. The Canadian Embassy was severely damaged. We are getting HUGE aftershocks every 20-30 minutes that bring down more rubble and are rattling everyone's nerves. I'll be working on a list tonight for ordered departure and hope to have a recommendation for the Department at 7:30. Thanks for your support! David

Thanks David – I will check in with you early am – you're doing a great job – you sounded strong on the call and are providing the necessary leadership given the challenges facing you and Ken.

We're here for anything you need.

Cheryl,
We'll look into it. I'm told a lot of people are taking refuge at the Karibe, leading me to hope it might be in better shape. I'll let you know anything I hear. David
