Subject: Libyan opposition to meet at White House Friday (AP)

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Obama administration is inviting representatives of Libya's opposition group to the White House Friday.

The White House says Mahmoud Jibril and a delegation from the Libyan Transitional National Council will meet with National Security Adviser Tom Donilon and members of Congress. A meeting with President Barack Obama didn't appear to be part of the delegation's schedule.

Jibril is the president of the Council, which opposes longtime Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi. Jibril met with Sen. John Kerry this week. Kerry says he is writing legislation at the request of the White House to free up some of Gadhafi's frozen assets for use by the opposition forces.

Jibril has said he wants to convey to Americans the group's dream of building a democratic Libya.
