I met with the head of the Munich breakfast yesterday. She also mentioned the interest in WPS (as well as eagerness of many of the high level Europeans on security to cooperate with us on the National Action Plan). When she gets back to Germany, she is going to send me the list of the attendees so we can follow up.

When I was in Munich, I met w a group of high level women in international national security positions who had heard about our women in public service initiative and wanted to extend it to Europe. Jane Harmon was there and offered to house (and fund) it at the Wilson Center. This program really hit a nerve. Let's meet soon on it.
