We just checked w/ L, AF and the Sudan Special Envoy's office and are all unaware of any information about a "lobbyist for Southern Sudan (who) is negotiating with the state department on a deal that would destroy these victims of the ability to collect money from Sudan."

S/USSESS was contacted by John Eaves (the author of the below e-mail) in January to discuss the victims' claims.

Burns,
On the case where we represent the survivors and families for the embassy bombings, we just learned that the lobbyist for Southern Sudan is negotiating with the state department on a deal that would destroy these victims of the ability to collect money from Sudan. If you remember, last year after putting on a weeks worth of expert testimony the District court in DC gave us a judgment finding that Sudan was directly responsible for supporting and helping the terrorist who carried it out. We were hoping that the State dept would help us just like they required Libya to pay the victims of all of its terrorist acts before they were granted "restored relations" in 08. I know that there may be more important national interest involved but supporting the State Dept employees and their families who sacrificed so much should at least be one of them. I'll be coming to DC next week but can come up anytime. John
