Our Global Health Initiative works closely with host nations, helping them build their capacity to run their health care systems. GHI also coordinates all our efforts in a country so that our work has the greatest possible reach and impact on the ground. So far, we have worked with more than 40 countries to develop integrated strategies that focus on improving health systems instead of providing individual services. Through GHI, we are leveraging our resources and platforms to secure an AIDS-free generation, end preventable child deaths, and save the lives of mothers around the world.
